To Whom It May Concern:

I supervised Kristopher Kato during his time at EnviroGuard. He was a great help to our marketing team while we were very short staffed.

He was eager to help with data entry, research projects, and CRM management. His work product displayed an attention to detail and a commitment to thoroughness. He took on new projects with persistence and would deploy his problem-solving skills to complete complex research projects.

I also appreciated his helpful attitude and his desire to learn. He was able to take a quick overview of an email marketing program and teach himself how to navigate the program and design new templates.

Sincerely,
